Re-investing in Lehigh Valley

While many employers are closing their doors or moving their local operations to other states or counties, one local, privately held company is continuing its strong commitment to the greater Lehigh Valley.

28 years after starting his small construction business, Jim Mellon has re-invested in the Lehigh Valley area. In need of more space for its growing Lehigh Valley operation, Mellon Certified Restoration purchased and renovated a larger 10,500 square foot building in Allentown, just a few miles east of the previous Bath, PA location. This move signals the company's commitment to the Lehigh Valley marketplace and the increasing success of their Lehigh Valley Branch. The move to this strategically located modern facility, increased the available on-site warehousing and parking, as well as professional office space for existing and future staff.

Mellon Certified Restoration President, Jim Mellon, recognizes the mutual benefits of community and business partnerships. "I believe it is the responsibility of all parties to work together to maintain viable local communities where business can grow and local residents can work. Over the years, our compact facility served us well but our reputation for quality service has translated into significant growth. We were in need of more room and our #1 priority was to locate a local facility large enough to house employees, equipment and warehouse space. Once we saw the property, we knew we found our new home in Allentown."

new location at 801 East Fairmont Street, Allentown. The event was attended by the mayor, representatives of the Allentown Chamber of Commerce, over 100 clients and company employees, and we cannot overlook a special celebrity in attendance, "Ferrous" the official Iron Pigs mascot.

Huntingdon Valley is Thinking Green

In keeping up with recent business growth at multiple locations, Mellon Certified Restoration is pleased to announce our recruitment of Dan Green as Branch Manager for our Huntingdon Valley office.

Dan comes to us with an extensive construction background, which started in the family business in 1977. That experience led him to own and operate his own construction company prior to moving into the restoration field in 2000, where he held a position of Construction Supervisor. After 6 years as a property adjuster with St. Pauls/Travelers, and Farmers F.A.C. T., he conquered new horizons by joining the management team of Mellon Certified Restoration in October 2009.

Dan's responsibilities in the Huntingdon Valley branch include the inspection of property losses, preparing estimates, leadership role of the staff, fiduciary responsibilities, and managing the ongoing day-to-day operations.

A graduate of Monsignor Bonner High School, Dan resides in Upper Darby, PA, with his wife, Patricia, together they have raised 4 wonderful children: his son Kevin, twins Colleen and Dan, and his youngest Maura. A native of Delaware County, Dan coaches and actively participates in the sport of crew. Please join us in welcoming Dan, and we hope you get to know him soon.
